FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE.

May 11, 2003

Woodmere, NY. Quantalytics, Inc. is pleased to announce the roll out of its Q-BACK™ Remote Automatic Backup™ service for small businesses, home-based businesses, and professional practices. Q-BACK Remote Automatic Backup allows businesses, professional practices, telecommuters and other at-home works to automatically create encrypted, secure backups and have them stored off-site on our servers. The backup software is simple to install and configure. Quantalytics offers free phone support to get the installation done. Once installed, backups runs automatically.

Finally, the necessary chore of regularly backing up data and storing it off-site has been fully automated.

“We have found” according to Michael Lukin, Marketing Director for Remote Automatic Backup, “that many small businesses and professional practices are not consistently backing up their data. This leads to disasters in the event of a hard drive failure or other major problems such as fires or floods. Small businesses and professional practices are usually too strapped for manpower to take care of backups on a consistent basis. We have now introduced an inexpensive way for these businesses and practices to enjoy the same data protection that large companies enjoy.”

To use Q-BACK Remote Automatic Backup, customers must have a broadband connection to the Internet (cable modem, DSL, or T-1) and be running Windows (any version).

Data restoration is also very easy using the provided software. Quantalytics has years of experience helping companies restore data, and as part of its Q-BACK Remote Automatic Backup service, is available 24 hours per day, 7 days a week to provide guidance.

The company, established in 1991, is a provider Systems Integration and Networking services to a wide variety of businesses and professional practices.
